FLAT GRANITE GRAVE MARKERS

Flat, flush, or lawn-level grave markers are precision cut slabs of granite that lie flat on the ground at the head or foot of a grave. BEVEL/PILLOW GRANITE GRAVE MARKERS

Bevel, or pillow, markers are cut slabs of granite that are raised slightly above the ground and are higher in the back than in the front. They can be for any number of traditional and cremation graves and come in a variety of sizes, styles, shapes, and colors.

FLAT BRONZE GRAVE MARKERS

Flat Bronze Grave Markers lie flat on the ground at the head or foot of grave. The bronze is actually a flat plate that can be affixed to the face of an optional flat granite marker. They often feature raised artistic design elements to enhance the beauty and personalize the message on the headstone. Flat bronze grave markers can be for any number of traditional and cremation graves and come in a variety of sizes, styles, shapes, and colors.

BRONZE VETERANS MARKERS & BRONZE MATCHING MARKERS FOR SPOUSES

The government provides bronze grave markers to veterans but not to their spouses—unless they're both buried in a qualified government cemetery. Fortunately, veterans' family members can order an exact matching bronze marker design with your personal information to go side by side in a private cemetery. We design perfect copies that can complement or take the place of a marker issued by the Department of Veterans Affairs. We also make markers for the veterans themselves.

Factors That Affect the Cost of a Headstone, Cemetery Memorial or Monument

Every memorial we make is custom to decisions that each family that we have the privilege to work with will make in regards to:

- Size
- Color of granite
- Quality of granite
- Style
- Texture
- Craftsmanship

Set a budget and we will design within that budget.

What is the perfect size memorial?

A “standard” memorial size does not exist. As a result, we encourage all of our families to measure memorials in the cemetery prior to selecting a size so that they are viewing the memorial in its natural setting. Memorials look larger in our displays than they will look outside.

What color and quality is the granite?

Granite comes in different varieties, colors, and grades. It is sourced from domestic and international quarries, each with unique characteristics and variations in durability and color. Granite’s “grade” or quality is a measure of the material’s durability, density, structural integrity, consistency, suitability for cutting, crafting and finishing. More durable varieties of granite are best for crafting memorials, and higher grade, highly durable, highly consistent granite varieties are typically higher priced—because they will not absorb moisture, will not discolor and will not fade. More common and readily available granite varieties and colors are usually priced lower (more supply). Harder to find granite varieties and colors are often priced higher. Source location and shipping distance also affects price.

The quarries we rely on in the United States and Canada are rigorously selected for high durability and rich color. Different quarries yield different mineral compositions in the stones, accounting for variations in durability and color.

What is the style and texture of the memorial?

We have our own in house artists that can create any style of memorial you desire. The more complex the shape of the memorial the higher the cost. In addition, the shape of the memorial can be finished in many different textures such as polished, tiffany, sawn, rustic, blued, etc., that can change the cost of the memorial.

What is the craftsmanship level?

The range of custom memorial and headstone design options is limited only by your imagination and your cemetery’s limitations and rules. Most any artistic design can be carved into granite or crafted into bronze. Granite carving processes can be simple or complex, one-dimensional or multi-dimensional. Higher priced monuments usually include complex artwork, portraits, laser etching, hand etching, porcelain portraits, artistic carving, detailed imagery, and custom designs. The simpler the craftsmanship level selected, the lower the memorial price.
